

Ballet Reading Chart

REWARD

REWARD

REWARD

REWARD

REWARD

YOUR NAME:

How to Use the Ballet Reading Chart

A QUICK GUIDE FOR PARENTS

This chart turns reading into a ballet show. Each box your child fills is one more step toward a golden tiara, and toward a reading habit that lasts.

1

Get ready for the show

Print the chart and let your child write their name in the name box. Hang it where they will see it every day, like the fridge or their bedroom door.

2

Decide what fills one box

Choose a goal that fits your child's age: one book, one chapter, or 15–20 minutes of reading. Agree on it together and keep the rule the same.

3

Fill a box after each reading

When the goal is done, your child colors a box, adds a sticker, or draws a heart or a star. Doing it themselves makes the progress feel real.

4

Reach a golden tiara

Every row has six boxes. When a row is complete, your child reaches the tiara REWARD at the end and earns the prize you agreed on beforehand.

5

Take a final bow

Thirty boxes and five rewards complete the chart. Celebrate the grand finale and, if they enjoyed it, print a new chart for the next season.

REWARD IDEAS

- ♥ Choosing a new book
- ♥ A trip to the library or bookstore
- ♥ An extra bedtime story
- ♥ A living-room dance show
- ♥ Picking the family movie
- ♥ Hair bows or ballet stickers

TIPS FOR SUCCESS

- ♥ Read together when you can.
- ♥ Let them choose: comics and magazines count too.
- ♥ Praise effort, not speed.
- ♥ Never erase boxes as a punishment.
- ♥ Ask about the story: "What was your favorite part?"

♥ Happy reading, little dancer! ♥